

1.

What is Design?

To design is the process of applying attributes to a specific element.

Design is/are stylistic attributes that contribute to the whole of an element (ie. color, font type, font size, etc.)

2.

What is Journalism?

Journalism is a piece of nonfiction writing or data that is public, usually written by a person who is reliable, fair, curious, and credible. The piece of nonfiction writing is usually on a subject relevant to current events and trends.

3.

What is Design for journalism?

Design for journalism is assigning attributes to both data and writing in order to more accurately portray information to society in a comprehensible and accessible way.

4.

How did you design this page? Why?

I changed the margins in order to bring the focus to the center of the page. I chose Cambria as the font because it's less industrial and more pleasing to the eye than a sans-serif. The questions are in dark purple, bolded and a size larger (11) to break them up and clearly show which answer is for which question. Furthermore, the numbers are above the questions to add to the order. Lastly, I used the "justify" icon to box in the text.