Design for Journalists
Dylan Greif

What is journalism?

- Reporting of factual, unbiased, urgent information in a written or visual format.

What is design?

- Creating an outcome with functionality and practicality in mind.

What is design for journalist?

- Presenting information in a functional manner that is captivating , engaging, as well a aesthetically pleasing.

How did you design this page?

- I kept it fairly simple, utilizing on italics, bullets, spacing, and a line to separate the more “objective” questions from the subjecting ones.

Why did you design it this way?

- I decided to bold the questions and use bullets for the answers because I think it makes it easier receive. And I used a line to separate the three question above from these two questions because I felt like the above three questions are different from the rest, in a sense that they warrant a more objective response.
