There is a wide variety of food choices available to us to select from, in our town. We can enjoy a typical American meal of steak, mashed potatoes and gravy at one of several traditional diners or get dressed up in formal attire and enjoy a fancy gourmet dinner at an upscale restaurant. We can even select a restaurant based on our mood. On the appropriate occasion, we can choose to dine at one of the restaurants that has a romantic ambience. When we are dining on a budget, we may choose to grab a meal at one of the national fast food chains, which often times proves to be a cool hang-out location for high-schoolers, for kids who can grab a toy with a meal purchase or a college student who can complete assignments while munching on a cheese burger and fries. If we are yearning for a tasty, sloppy plate of goodness, we have that too. Ill stop by the Hot Grille and chomp down on snappy hot dog and one of my favorites, french fries with gravy. When we need hot take out meals to enjoy with the family, we order Chinese food by phone, then drive three blocks to pick it up. Or, we have pizza delivered from Domino's, Pizza Hut or our local pizzeria, which is also a couple blocks away.

As ethnic groups increase their presence in our town, so goes the neighborhood food landscape. There is a myriad of ethnic restaurants that dot the city. From Turkish, to Polish. From Italian to Latin. We enjoy rice and beans, Cuban style, or feel at home in the Portuguese restaurant, while enjoying paella or fresh seafood. The Sunday games can be enjoyed while sipping a favorite brew and eating a casual meal at one of the many Pubs.

We often spend time at our favorite coffee-house, sitting at an outside table while sipping our favorite hot concoction. On a warm summer day, we enjoy frozen yogurt in a cup, or visit one of our go-to gastro-nomic loves that has outside seating and eagerly enjoy appetizers and desserts.
