“I live in the center of Bed-Stuy. I live on Stuyvesant and Monroe. There is Oaxaca Taqueria, which is four blocks (away)... It’s nice, it’s sort of in this food corridor that’s one block over from my house. The restaurants are pretty... they’re nice but they’re also kind of expensive because they’re products of gentrification mostly, so there’s a bunch of really cool brunch spots that I’ve never been to because I can’t afford it. There are a lot of options it’s just a matter of them being too expensive.”
